

David Kelly has worked in the construction and development industry for over 29 years.

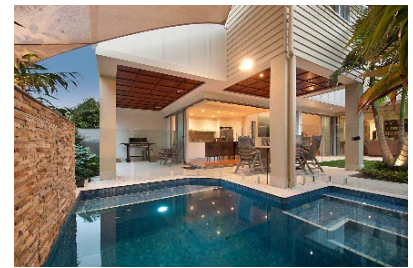

He has gathered a broad range of qualifications and more importantly experience, as a: carpenter, builder, professional engineer, project manager and property developer. We don't know anyone in Australia with this range of specific skills suited to the development industry. Do you?

David has completed construction projects in all Australian States and Internationally. In 2006 he sold a construction business that was the industry leader in its sector. He then worked internationally as an investment banker developing several international projects.

David now develops his own property projects, is the preferred development manager for one of Australia's largest companies and consults in sustainability. David also educates in property development.

Please contact us if you need further information: admin@dtk.com.au or FB @propertydevelopmentmastery

Property Developer and Builder:residential and land subdivisions

Development Manager: commercial, mining, residential | Sustainability Consulting